

DIAMOND JUBILEE CELEBRATION NOW TAKING FINAL SHAPE

The general committee under the chairmanship of Mayor Forster is rapidly getting things into such shape that the Diamond Jubilee Celebration at Wainwright will be without doubt the biggest thing ever put over in town.

Practically, at this writing only minor details remain to be worked out and the sub-committees having these matters in hand are all working night and main to the end that everything may go smoothly and everyone the more thoroughly enjoy the big celebration.

It has been decided to have two platforms at the grounds. Upon one of these the massed choirs will sing and the other will be pressed into service as a bandstand for the occasion.

It has been decided to offer prizes for the best floats in the parade and it is hoped and expected that every citizen will decorate his premises to do honor to the occasion.

The big speaker for the day will be Col. K. C. McLeod, of Edmonton in addition to which other local speakers will each add their voice to that part of the entertainment. The cannon of bells in the Victory tower at the parliament buildings at Ottawa will be "brought in" by Mr. Harold Brunner who will install a radio receiving set and loud speakers at the Fair grounds for this purpose.

On Friday evening the monster bonfire to be followed by a fireworks display and fire balloons will form a fitting wind-up for the day for the youngsters.

On Saturday (Sports' day) there will be something doing all the time, for the committee have in hand the biggest affair ever attempted in this part of the country. Horse racing, basketball, tug-of-war and a hundred and one sports' events will be put on in the fair grounds and the band will be on the ground all day after leading the procession from needs of thin dinner man, the centre of town. Booths on the grounds will make provisions for the needs of the inner man and all sundry will be protected against hunger and thirst by this means. In the evening a big alfresco dance is being arranged for the pavilion on Main street and special pictures are to be shown at the Elite theatre on both nights.

Another monster crowd is looked for on Sunday July 3rd, when all will join in the sacred thanksgiving at 3.30 p.m. on the grounds. The massed choirs of the town will be led by Capt. W. Edwards and the band have prepared a selection of well known hymns for a half-hour's community singing at three o'clock.

The decoration committee urge upon everyone to get in line and decorate their places of business, their homes and their cars; and thus do their bit towards a proper festive celebration. Several hundred yards of bunting and flags have been ordered for decorating the grounds, etc., and the merchants are well prepared to supply the needs of the private individual.

Get behind the committees; help in every way; decorate and illuminate and prepare to thoroughly enjoy for your children's sake the big Wainwright celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation.

MANITOBIANS' $500 MONEY CANNOT PAY BILLS

WINNIPEG — Determined effort to curb race track gambling in the province will be made at the instance of the United Church of Manitoba following the adoption of a resolution condemning all forms of speculation.

Gambling reached such proportions during the 28 days of horse racing in Manitoba "that legitimate business is paralyzed for the time being and many tradesmen are unable to collect for groceries, meats and other necessities of life sold to these whose earnings have been lost as the result," the resolution said.

Several carloads of lumber have now started to roll into town for the Spring store of the Atlas Lumber Co. Get your orders in early; we'll help you to do the figuring on whatever you want to build. Joe Welch, mgr.

MESSAGE TO ALL FROM CHAIRMAN OF CANADIAN RED X

It has become necessary for the Canadian Red Cross Society to make a nationwide appeal for contributions in order to replenish its treasury. This Society proposes to undertake in the period between Empire Day and Dominion Day.

Since the war the work of the Society has been to supplement governmental measures for the benefit of disabled ex-soldiers and to carry the peace-time programme for the improvement of health, the fulfilment of which has developed upon the Red Cross under Article xxv of the Covenant of the League of Nations.

Its services have been of very great benefit to Canada; and since the war they have been carried on at a cost of over $7,000,000. The kinds of service carried on by the Red Cross since the Great War are not yet as well known as their importance deserves. But its efforts have contributed to our national prosperity; its co-operation with official and professional services has promoted the general health of our people and has helped to diminish the incidence of preventable disease with its immense cost in time and money.

The Red Cross has a singular emphasis upon the necessity of accepting the advice and guidance of the natural and competent leaders in all health matters, namely, the doctors, public health officials, public nurses and other qualified teachers. Only by following such well-trained leaders—men and women of high intelligence, professional ability, irreproachable integrity and devotion to the public good—can safe and continuing progress be made. The role of the Red Cross is to back up their services to create public opinion in support of their work and to diffuse such popular information among laymen and laywomen as will make opportunity for the special professional knowledge of the few to become beneficial in the lives of all.

During the war the Red Cross had the support of the whole community. The funds then subscribed are now exhausted and the Red Cross with the old Samaritan spirit in its heart and "do a good turn whenever you can" in its programme once more appeals to the people of Canada. Will not you, who generously to the Red Cross for humanitarian services during the destructive operations of the War, give with equal generosity for the constructive peace-time efforts of the Red Cross on behalf of the health of good health habits and a healthier, happier more contented and prosperous people?

REMAINS OF LATE MR ARCHIE McLEAN ARE LAID TO REST

On Wednesday last at Wainwright United church 1200 gathered to fill capacity a sad congregation of friends and acquaintances to pay their last respects to the memory of Mr. Archie McLean whose death was recorded in our last issue.

The Rev. G. Pybus had charge of the services at both the church and graveside and the church choir led the singing in a couple of favorite hymns of the departed these being: "O God our help in ages past" and "Blest be the tie that binds."

In a touching requiem eulogy the pastor described the life of the pioneer which the deceased had led during the early years of his life in this community and the rugged yet splendid example he had set in his many years residence here.

The floral covered casket was followed to the cemetery by a long procession of town and country folk all anxious to mark their respect to this real old-timer of the district.

The pall bearers were Messrs S. Bowerman, N. Kenny, W. Washburn, G. Siddall, F. Perkins and A. Wilkie and the McLeod Parlors carried out the arrangements.

Among the numerous floral tokens were:—The family, pillow; A. Wilkie wreath; J. Robinson spray; Women's Institute, spray; Mr. and Mrs. O. Murray, spray; J. Dornand, spray; and others.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mr. Archibald McLean takes this means of expressing their heartfelt gratitude for the many expressions of love and sympathy extended to them in their bereavement and for the beautiful flowers.

MRS G. L. HUDSON SUFFERS NASTY ACCIDENT

Last week while visiting in Edmonton Mrs. Geo. Hudson met with a very painful accident which necessitated her removal to hospital for a few days. It appears that the lady was returning from a visit to a friend's house and in crossing Jasper avenue she tripped on the street car rails with the result that in falling out her left arm to break her fall she dislocated her elbow and fractured a small bone. Mrs. Hudson was given immediate attention by Dr. A. Maclellan of Edmonton who advised removal to the Royal Alexandra Hospital. We learn that the patient left the hospital on Sunday and is expected home this week, although the injury will probably incapacitate her for some weeks.

MARION DAVIES ADDS NEW ROLE FILM SUCCESS

In her characterization of Mamie the heroine "Zander the Great" Marion Davies, Cosmopolitan star has added a new and entirely different portrait to her gallery of screen impersonations. "Zander" which is released by Metro-Goldwyn is here Monday and Tuesday next.

With her responsibilities weighing heavily on her shoulders Mamie drives a rickety car from New Jersey to Arizona, with her little "Zander" her baby and his rabbits under her maternal guidance.

Arrived in the far west Mamie soon finds that bootlegging and rum smuggling are among the best methods of occupation long the border between Arizona and Mexico and with complete innocence she becomes the housekeeper for one of the leaders of the gang.

Mamie manages to metamorphose herself into a nurse with whom she comes in contact in this role. Miss Davies presents two entirely new facets to her screen characterization—a light comedy touch and a quaint whimsical sweetness.

NEW MAP SHOWS ALL ALBERTA AND ADJOINING TERRITORY

Alberta is being put more prominently on the map so reports presented to the meeting of the combined federal, tourist and good roads committee of the Alberta Development Board "southern section" which was held Thursday under the chairmanship of Ernie Willis at Calgary.

A new map showing all the roads in Alberta, the adjoining provinces and the northwestern States was submitted for approval by Dr. P. G. Atkinson chairman of the map committee and it received warm endorsement. It is being finally revised and will then be ready for distribution.

The map shows whether the roads are gravelled or not and gives very clearly just the information which the motorist wants.

Norman Smith chairman of the folder committee reported that the folders were in good shape and would be ready for distribution next week.

CONFEDERATION AND AFTER; SIXTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

THE BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ACT

The original Dominion of Canada formed July 1, 1867, by the British North America Act was composed of four provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Manitoba became the fifth province in 1870; in 1871 British Columbia became the sixth; in 1873, Prince Edward Island became the seventh; in 1905 Alberta and Saskatchewan became the eighth and ninth provinces. Yukon became a territory in 1898 and all the rest of Canada is "The Northwest Territories." The British North America Act may be termed the "Written Constitution" of Canada although in Canada there is much that is unwritten in that Constitution which has been defined as "the totality of the principles more or less vaguely and generally stated upon which we think the people should be governed."

The difference between the Constitution of Canada and that of the United States has been described (by the Hon. W. R. Riddell) as speaking generally, "In Canada anything unconstitutional is wrong, however legal it may be in the United States anything unconstitutional is illegal, however right and even advisable it may be."

There is no provision in the B.N.A. Act for amendments thereto, the reason being what would be the process of Lower and Upper Canada, were united in 1841, into the Province of Canada, the old Lower Province was largely populated by the French-Canadian almost all of whom were Roman Catholics and much attached to their old laws and customs the remainder of the people of the New Dominion were largely English-speaking and Protestant, in general attached to English law and customs. While the French-Canadians were willing to enter into a contract with their English-speaking brethren; they were not willing to enter into a contract which could be varied by the more numerous English without their consent.

Still there is no difficulty in having an amendment made when desired. It is brought about in this fashion: An Address to the Sovereign is passed by both Houses of Parliament at Ottawa asking for the amendment specified. According to the unwritten Constitution, the vote on the Address must be unanimous (or practically unanimous) or it will not be forwarded to London. When the Address is received by the Colonial Secretary in London, the desired amendment to the B.N.A. Act is passed by the Imperial Parliament as of course and without debate.

The legal conception of the powers of the Parliament of the Dominion and the Legislatures of the Provinces is that they are a grant by the Imperial Parliament to the B.N.A. and amending Acts. It is a mistake to infer from this that such powers are limited and delegated. Lord Selborne laid this down definitely saying, "The Legislature has powers expressly limited by the Act of the Imperial Parliament which created it and it can, of course do nothing beyond the limits which circumscribe those powers. But when acting within those limits it is not in any sense an agent or delegate of the Imperial Parliament but has and was intended to have plenary powers of legislation as large of the same nature as those of the Imperial Parliament itself."

PROVINCIAL MINISTERS CALGARY OFFICE

The direct service of the Government to the people of the southern part of the province through the newly opened provincial government office in Calgary will be made available by the presence in this office of one of the members of the cabinet each Thursday throughout the season. While it is impossible to state far in advance which minister will be in attendance in Calgary each Thursday this announcement will be made through the Calgary papers early in each week.

It is at all times of individuals wishing to meet members of the government in the Calgary office may make arrangements by communication with Edmonton or telephoning or calling at the "Office of the Executive Council" to the left, entering the main door of the Land Titles Building, Calgary, phone Main 9244.

CANADA'S THREE SCORE YEARS OF NATIONHOOD

The production of foodstuffs must, for the growth of fruit grain vegetables unrivaled the world over. In the item of wheat alone the year of Confederation saw a crop of 10,323,979 bushels for the entire territory now known as the Dominion of Canada. Last year the total production of wheat was 406,269,300 bushels.

In the last 60 years the development of machinery has made work much less laborious. In 1867 the cutting of grain by machinery was comparatively new and the machines then in use were crude and unwieldy.

In that year a Canadian company a man with a wooden rake, who raked produced the hand-rake shown in the window into sheaves and Mr. Jefferys' sketch which was far found them with a wisp of straw superior to any manufactured before could harvest from three to four acres in a day that day the entire acre a day. Nowadays a power-crop was cut by the old-fashioned driven reaper-thresher which cut a 15-foot swath and carries a crew of two men can cut and thresh forty acres in a day! The artist shows the old and new methods together with another labor-saving device—a modern tractor.

What Every Girl Should Know

by
GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
AT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW, with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner Bros. picture of this

"Oh, Robert darling! Mary leaped back on her heels and closed her eyes against the tears that would persist in blinding her."

"I'll—I'll write you Mary every single day."

"If I shouldn't be able to come so quickly, you'll come to me Mary? Mary couldn't hear that. She wheeled towards the policeman who, rocked placidly beside them looking on."

"Where are you taking him do you know?" she demanded.

"New York probably. That's the nearest."

"Shall I be able to come and see him?"

"Well, placidly, 'I don't see why not.'"

"You hear that, young Bob? I shall be able to come to see you—and I will often. Oh darling! Young Robert held closely against Mary. Young Robert struggling desperate to be brave because Mary looked so harassed. I shall play I am Lancelot Mary going to war. He stroked her head where she knelt beside him."

"Yes, darling. Her voice was muffled in the grey tweed of his knickerbockers. His Sunday suit. He had insisted upon it for the journey. Grey looked like the gleam of armor."

"His sturdy little figure, minute beside that of the policeman, marched off down the street. He turned and blew numerous kisses to Mary. Then Mary was alone."

Returning to the house, Mary stumbled against a crack in the sidewalk. "Davie was going to fix that," she thought dreadingly. There would be no need of it now. They had all left the little green house now. Davie and Robert, and now she would go on the morrow. Alone. Free of all encumbrances, was Mary. Her previous conception of the perfect state for woman. No encumbrances that dragged at one and called one from the high places. Strangely enough there was no joy in the thought. She savored it and found it dry. A life one live in ideals and dreams only to discover them empty mockeries."

Within the house all was cool and quiet. A tennis ball was being rolled amiably about by Patch, who had been hidden a very brave faraway by Robert. Patch was annoyed. When young Robert had clutched her compulsively to his breast he had wet and mused her neck fur some how. Young Robert reckoned that tears did not show in fur and reckoned correctly. For if Mary did see the tears on Patch she would think they were caused by the kitten's little pink tongue. But Mary didn't notice either 'Patch or the tears. Mary sought relief in work. Anything to recall her thoughts from the figure of the little boy being led off by the woman whose type was most uncommonly termed "raw-boned."

Her white tennis middie and skirts. Would she require them where she was going? Did one play tennis in New York? One doubtlessly did if one had the time and the court. Doubtless that she would have either."

At the moment she had no other issue than that of remembering Edgerton from that place. She avoided the orphan asylum. It was bitter that Bobbie should have a taste of that which Davie had done his utmost to protect them from. Davie should never know. She would go to New York where she might be near the little brother on work. Anything that would bring her enough for them both. Anything to prove to the raw-boned lady that Bobbie would be as well off in Mary's care as he would in that of the asylum."

She would leave tomorrow. There was almost a quickening of her blood at the thought. A new life! "Not too much eagerness, my dear," she counseled herself. She resolved to go slowly and build with patience and careful forethought. Build her house in such a fashion that the foundation would not permit of a careless overthrow by a superior force. Wariness had become part of her creed now."

Downstairs the telephone rang and Mary ran to answer it. There was lightness in her step again. She felt within her a new urge something for which to live and work. The thought brought her tranquility a commodity of which she had felt little these past chaotic weeks."

The voice on the other end of the wire prove to be that of Wally. "Hello sweet; what's the cry from Canolot?"

Mary answered with a gay lilt in her voice, but when her eyes closed against her sudden dimming. The brave young Lancelot has ridden off to the wars."

Wally was suddenly alert. She felt the spring to attention as though at a command. "What's that?" he asked. "Robert's gone Wally?" she swallowed and repeated it more firmly the second time.

"I'm coming over, and the sound of the receiver being snapped back on the hook."

She finished her packing before he came, and was waiting for him as he remembered her the first time he had seen her, after the tournament at the park her head a shining mark against the green of the post, ankles crossed before her."

"Well he grinned as his eyes took her in, 'you look peaceful enough Lord knows. Tell me why I've chased down here on one leg as it were with the other lying behind me in mid-air.'"

"No Wally. You're not going to do that. I've thought it all out. It does not hurt any more and perhaps that part of it is for the best. She would try to explain. "You see—it would be difficult to support myself and Bobbie right now—"

"I don't know," she asked, smiling at his flushed face, why did you?"

"You're an irritating baggage. Where's Robert?"

"I've told you Wally. She rather enjoyed the anxiety she was causing. It pleased her to think that the affairs of the Sullivan were proving so very much a part of his life."

"But you haven't told me all," he came to seat himself on the railing opposite her, removing her ankles as he did the first time. He remembered as of course, Wally would. But did Mary?"

"No, Mary shook her head. 'I haven't told you all. They came to take Bobbie away. She turned her head away from Wally's gaze. It was only the self-profile now with the curve of hair on her cheek."

"Who came to take him, where?"

"I don't know who she was—she was sent by the authorities—to take Bobbie to an orphan asylum. She thought, 'her voice came lower, 'she thought I wasn't a fit companion for him—the sister of a murderer—and that he was enough to forget all if given into the proper hands."

Wally made a little noise not quite a laugh not quite an ejaculation. A lead away from Wally's gaze. It was only the self-profile now with the curve of hair on her cheek."

they deserve. I'll get the attention of the country focused right here in little old Garden City. I'll get them somehow."

"No, Wally. You're not going to do I've thought it all out. It doesn't hurt any more and perhaps that part of it is for the best. She would try to explain. "You see—it would be difficult to support myself and Bobbie right now—"

"You don't think I'd let you do you?" Wally interrupted grimly.

Her gaze was a concoction of everything blessed. "Some day Wally I'll tell you what I really think of you—"

"Tell me now," his eyes pleaded. She hurried on. "I've thought it all out—what was I saying—it would be rather hard for me, she put the palm of her hand against his mouth to smother another outburst, and until I get settled I'd prefer, I really would prefer it, I think—happily—to have Bobbie some where where I know he will be safe. He won't be happy there. Young Robert, her eyes misted 'but it's just as well and when I am able I'll come and get him. And let them try to tell me I'm a detrimental influence!" she finished.

"Mary—a detrimental influence?" when she was driving him on to the best, that was in his best he did not realize himself capable of feeling "What are your plans, sweet?"

"New York."

He stared at her. "What?"

"New York, Wally. Can't you hear me, New York?"

"Like blazes!" he flared.

"Don't swear, Wallace," primly with a laugh, in her eyes.

Wally truthfully. "Like blazes," said I'll say it again. What do you mean—'New York? What's doing there that isn't down here?"

"Bobbie's doing there, Wally."

"And—?"

"That's all. She rose struck her palms together and asked with a little weary gesture, 'Isn't that enough?"

"Not quite," Wally was grim. "How do you think it will help to be near him?"

"I'll see him more often."

"I doubt that."

"You mean—they won't let me to him? Surely—"

"I doubt that they will consider you the best influence for him."

His voice was gentle. They'll try to accustom him—and your coming won't help—you see?"

"Well—that remains to be seen. Nevertheless he will feel I am there. She shook her head impatiently. "Nothing can keep me, I'm going."

Wally groaned. "Oh Lord! Then look here Mary! He came to her in two strides, and grasped her wrist with one hand while the other he forced her to look up. "You're going to marry me Mary," grimly he shook her chin to disturb the calm of her gaze. "Do you hear?"

"No."

"He said, I promised I wouldn't again—but I shall you shouldn't look that way and grasped her little young body in his arms and bent his shining head—When he lifted it again he was breathing with an effort. There was something in his chest that obstructed the passage of air from his lungs. He overcame that as if lifting himself bodily and leaping the obstacle.

Mary looked at him and answered the question she saw pleading from his eyes.

"No."

That maddened him. "Do you know what love is—are you capable of feeling it, you frigid little—little—His hand grasped her wrist again and he was hurting her. She had never seen Wally so white and the customary gay light was gone from his eyes."

"I've no time for it," she countered weakly afraid somehow.

"No time for love? He threw back his head and laughed. Oh Elaine, Elaine sweet! when it comes it won't be because you've found time for it. Why am I heckling you as are innocent as the proverbial lamb? Well—that's that. Wally had reverted again. Let's get back to New York. When are you going?"

"Tomorrow."

He was taken aback. "No so soon 'Yes I can't wait to begin."

He thought of the troublesome paths in store for her which he, out of the fund of his superior knowledge could intuitively feel.

"Are you going to write to me?"

"Of course Wally."

"Will you keep me informed of everything including your need of help?"

"That will never rise!" Cockily the old Mary with head tilted. He groaned. Would she never learn! And yet, he adored it, the bright scarlet feather of youth.

"I'm coming to see you off."

"No please Wally dear. I'd rather you didn't."

There was such a thing, thought Wally as carrying a thing a bit too far.

"Why in blazes not?"

"Oh—I don't know—what she meant was that she wanted to start fresh, to make her life with no former condolences of her jewels and right hamper her progress."

"Nevertheless," said Wally. "I'm coming. And he did and there were no tears albeit Mrs Tomlinson did wipe her eyes when she thought Mary was about to leave the furthest gesture. There were flowers from Wally, or chrysids, no less, a gay little corsage. And a cake from Mrs Tomlinson.

"Good-bye Elaine dear," he heard bared. It hurt saying good-bye to Wally. There came a funny little tug at her breast.

"Good-bye, Wally, dear."

"You will write anxiously 'and let me know everything?'"

"I will, dear."

"Good-bye, Mrs Tomlinson."

"Good-bye, Mary darling. Be a good girl and remember your mother and remember the wickedness of the city," at which Mary smiled.

"Good-bye—good-bye! Wally and Mrs Tomlinson standing close together in the blazing noon-day sun and growing more and more blurred with each inch that Mary drew away from them and the very last memory of Garden City was Mrs Tomlinson waving her bag frantically and mouthing something that vaguely looked like 'Patch' which was silly of course. Patch was to board at Mrs Tomlinson's. But what could it have been that she had been trying to tell Mary? And whatever it was—what did it matter now? What did anything matter but the new life that was waiting for her, pulsating with every deep throb of the train trolley acquirer in the sun that Mary might come to gather the loveliness of its blossoms?"

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA JUNE 16th, 1927

IMPERIAL OIL STILL DRILLING

The plans announced by Mr. C. O. Stillman president of Imperial Oil Limited are evidence of the firm belief of the company in the future of Alberta.

A tendency has lately shown itself here to gauge oil prospects by the state of the oil stock market. For the present oil share prices are comparatively unimportant so long as drilling of wells continues. The main thing is to have the geological promising areas thoroughly explored. While this is being done the stock market can take second place without injury to the actual oil industry.

The Imperial company has already spent a huge amount in the quest for oil in Alberta. Its faith has been repaid to a considerable extent but largely by the one well Royalite No. 4. The success of the other companies has contributed to a strengthening of this company's confidence and of the confidence of other investors. It is gratifying to learn that the company that has made the largest investment in oil drilling in Alberta proposes to carry forward the work on a considerable scale this year.

THE BUFFALO THRIVES IN CANADA

The buffaloes of the North American continent were at the point of extinction a few years ago. Then the Canadian Government bought a new handful of them—if one may speak of buffaloes in terms of handfuls. The government provided them with a new home at Wainwright and left them pretty much to their own devices.

Not very long afterward there were more buffaloes at Wainwright than the grounds could feed. First the excess number were slaughtered but the animal population of the park grew faster than the butcher cut them down. The government then went into the transfer business. It moved several thousands to a new reserve farther north, says the Calgary Herald.

Without doubt the buffaloes, happy in security and in the abundance of good grass will continue to multiply. What then? There is a limit to the distance that they can be moved back. Not enough ships named after Alberta cities to create a steady demand for hawks. The buffalo coat and robes can account for a limited number. A good many will be eaten. Buffalo steaks are likely to become as common as tips on the race. But if the past presages the future the buffalo will always be a lap ahead of the head hunters and transfer vans.

It is understood that Hon. Charles Stewart is worrying. He has an Indian department, and a parks department and other departments on his hands now. Will he have to set up a buffalo department?

The situation shows what Canada can do. Here is an animal that was practically the last of his species only a few years ago living down in Montana and apparently preferring death to staying here. Moved up into this country he has set the old extinction scare completely to rest. He has grown fat and numerous. Instead of being a has-been he has become a political problem engaging the perplexed attention of high members of government.

GOVERNMENT WILL SHARE COST OF URBAN ROADS

With the gravelling of the major portion of the trunk highway from Edmonton to the Montana border within sight of completion this fall the excess number were slaughtered but the animal population of the park stirred to action in regard to the urban roads.

The Second Series of Wheat Pool Contracts

SAFETY because it is a farmer-owned and controlled co-operative Association which markets over fifty per cent of Canada's wheat crop

SAFETY because it guarantees to the farmers every cent paid by the consumer minus only the minimum costs of marketing.

SAFETY because it increased the farmers in come and independence by giving him a voice in the selling of his crop.

SAFETY because it insures the farmer against the losses and uncertainties caused by fluctuating speculative markets

SAFETY because of low handling costs. The total annual expenses of operating the Alberta Wheat Pool in 1923, 1924 and 1925 was less than one-half a cent per bushel. The Total expense of the Central Selling Agency in 1925-26 was one-fifth of a cent per bushel

SAFETY because the Pool employs experts to handle and sell its grain

SAFETY because Pool elevators guarantee fair weights, grades and dockage and good service

SAFETY because the Pool merchandises wheat as the demand arises and thus avoids depressing values by offering more than the consumer will take at fair prices

SAFETY because the sole aim of Pool salesmen is to get the true value of wheat for its members finished gaps existing in the highway through towns and villages along the route.

This situation was called to the attention of the Government some time ago by the Alberta Motor Association and the department urged to contribute a share of the heavy cost of bringing these sections of the road through urban limits up to the standard of construction through the municipal districts in which the Federal Aid Act applied.

The Government has agreed to assume half the cost of such construction in the towns and villages and to further provide engineering services free. This will apply to all urban municipalities situated on any highway in the Province and effect about 150 miles of roadway in all.

SHEEP
Receipts at both Calgary and Edmonton during the past week have been insufficient to establish a market.

GRAIN
Practical all seedling completed in the province now. Heavy rainfalls are bringing the crop along nicely after a warm spell.

CREAM—BUTTER—MILK
CREAM — Prices are unchanged from last week and receipts are said to be showing a large increase. Milk is inclined to be unsettled. CREAMERY BUTTER — Values are holding steady with those of last week in spite of the general feeling that there should be a decline. Coast market inclined to be quiet. Eastern trade is reported to be firming up. DAIRY BUTTER — Receipts are very light owing to bulk of cream being shipped to country points and centralizing creameries. Price unchanged.

POULTRY—EGGS
POULTRY — Trade reports a slight increase in the number of chickens and old roosters handled this week over that of last. Bulk of hens are in good condition but roosters are a little off. Good demand cleaning up supplies readily. Broiler trade continues draggy through lack of demand. Receipts also light as outside shipper says to be afraid of the market. Storage stocks pretty well cleaned up except for a number of light weight chickens. EGGS — Another advance of 1 cent to 15¢ per set at the beginning of the week. Extras now quoted at 7¢; first, 25¢; second, 21¢; and cracks 16¢ with some sections of the trade quoting 1¢ higher than this. Receipts very light while general trade is cleaning up all arrivals. Very little going into storage.

POTATOES
Supplies on market during past week have been very limited owing somewhat to bad weather conditions. Jobbers are not fussy about handling them either. Quotation of $20 per ton still prevails. New spuds from States reported to be on market and retailing at two and a half and three pounds for 25¢.

BULLETIN FROM PROVINCIAL GOVT.

Appreciation of Travelling Clinics
Letters continue to come into the Department announcing Hon. George Howley, Minister of Health, expressing appreciation of the splendid work being done by the Travelling Clinic under the charge of Dr. R. H. Washburn which is bringing medical service to many outlying communities. Mrs. R. Clarke, Fraser reports that at Naco near Coronation operations were performed on over thirty children and many in addition were given dental attention and prescription for glasses. Results indicate, states Mrs. Fraser, that this service is one of the greatest the government has ever undertaken.
At the four points visited to date since May 15 a total of 80 operations have been performed, 284 consultations have been held and 130 dental treatments have been given. Requests are being received from many other districts for the services which the clinic is rendering.

More Buffalo Moved North
The first consignment of a further shipment of 2,000 buffalo to be moved this season from the park at Wainwright to the wood buffalo preserve at Fort Smith is expected to leave Edmonton on June 7. Arrangements have been made at Waterways to transfer the buffalo from the railway to the scows which will carry them down the river to their new home. Shipping is expected to continue throughout the summer and early fall until 2,000 head have been moved. The 1927 shipments will bring the total number of buffalo moved to the northern preserve up to over 5,000, as 1,634 were transferred in 1925 and 2,011 in 1926. Plans are under way for an aerial survey to be undertaken soon by the Dominion Government of the area in the far north over which the wood and plains buffalo are roaming.

LURE OF THE MOUNTAINS FOR HOLIDAY SEEKERS

Many people in these days are like the Psalmist in wishing to lift up their eyes to the hills. In all ages mountains have had a fascination for people of the earth. Early races worshipped upon hills or looked to the mountains as the dwelling places of their deities. In these days the mountains have an increasing lure to all classes who are in the position to make the necessary trip to reach them and in Canada we are indeed fortunate in having mountain scenery which in variety and extent surpasses anywhere.
The Rocky Mountains with the Selkirk and Coast Mountains form a veritable mountaineer's paradise. Its extent is so great as to provide fresh trails and deeper thrills each season for those who have the hardihood year after year to seek out the secrets of the hills. Many of these adventurous playgrounds have been named by the Topographical Survey Department of the Interior and very excellent maps are available. Some of these maps of park areas have been issued in co-operation with the Canadian National Parks Branch of the Department and may be obtained from either office.

RAILWAY WAGE DISPUTE SETTLED

OTTAWA—Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, announced that word had been received saying that a basis of agreement had been reached in the dispute between the Canadian Pacific Railway and certain of its clerks, freight handlers and station employees members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, etc. The basis of agreement was reached in Montreal and the negotiators are now working on the details.
This relieves a very threatening situation in which about 5,000 employees are directly affected.
